

TOMINTOUL

Forbes

The World's Best Single Malt Scotch—According To The Scotch Whisky Masters

Brad Japhe

8/24/2020

A total of 52 medals were doled out across more than two dozen subcategories; everything from non-age-statement blends to Islay malts over 31 years in age. But only one ‘Taste Master’ distinction was awarded in this year’s competition. And it went to a 25-year-old bottle of Tomintoul single malt from the Speyside region of Scotland.

“Just how many variations on a honeyed theme can you get? Here I count at least five, each wave coming in after the other; medium length but sheer quality all the way.

Bird’s custard mixing dreamily with drier, playfully spiced, oaky vanillas... not a single weakness.

Just magnificent whisky bottled the way it is meant to be.”

—Jim Murray
THE WHISKY BIBLE